Forbade the Marriage

Miss Gertrude Howe was about to be married to Frederick Burks in St. Stephen's Church, in Chicago, yesterday, when a startling incident interrupted the ceremony. As the pastor recited the formula as to whether any reason existed why the couple ought not to be married, a tall, fragile, blackeyed girl, bearing a baby in her arms, stejped forward and sternly said:
"I forbid the marriage." The church was crowded with friends who had come to witness the ceremony, and as this bombsbell declaration was uttered everybody started up with amezement. The groom's ruddy face paled and he staggered as if ne had received a mortal blow. The bride almost fainted at the after steps. The clergyman was aghast at the unexpected turn of events. He demanded an explanation from the woman. The groom recovered his compos-ure first and whispered to his best man to bring a paper from his overcoat pocket. The document was then banded to the clergyman and evidently proved satisfactory, for the ceremony proceeded.

The girl, who was Sarah Harris, protest ed, declaring Burke already had a wife and family in Canada, and, also, he had promised to marry her before he had told her of his previous marriage. But before the ultar steps the groom declared us was not married, and that the woman, Sarah Harris, had signed the document, then in the mitister's hand, giving up all claims on him for the support of her and their child. Five weeks before the birth Mi-s Harris procured a warrant for his arrest, and he was at-raigned. He then swore he had a wife and family in Canada, and was discharged. Weak and ill and with no friends to help her in her great trouble. Miss Harris signed a paper giving up all claims on Barke for $100 and the payment of the doctor's fers.

I am a painter by trade. Three years ago I had a bad case of Lead Poison, caused by using paint. I was cured in a short time by S. S. S. The medicine drove the poison out through the pores of the skin. My system was so saturated with poison that my underclothes were colored by the paint being worked out by the medicine through the pores of my skin. I was cured entirely by S. S. S., and have had no return since. C. PARK LEAK, Waynesville, Ohio.
